WAINWRIGHT DELEGATE GIVES REPORT OF W.I. CONVENTION

By Mrs W. T. Brunker
Wainwrights Representative

The thirteenth annual convention of the Women's Institute of Alberta was held in the Palliser hotel, Calgary May 25-28.

The convention opened by singing O'Canada followed by W.I. creed over three hundred delegates being present. In welcoming the delegates to the convention the president Mrs Wellington Huyck, of Strome, reminded them that their own attitude to it would govern the benefit to it would derive from its proceedings. If you give rise to the spirit of criticism then you can hope for little in the way of inspiration and help, but if you come in the right frame of mind then the convention will offer much for the year to come," she said. "Personal service," she emphasized, "counts more than anything else in carrying on the great work of the Institutes but the strength of a large convention lies in its co-ordination.

Greetings were brought to the delegates by Mrs F. E. Wyman representing the U.F.W.A. Mrs G. H. Carrad of the W.I. of Calgary who also brought an offering of flowers. Mrs A. MacWilliams who spoke on behalf of the local Council of Women. The Girl's Club presented the president with a lovely basket of flowers. Mrs J. N. Beaulieu past president responded to the greetings.

Hon. George Hoadley minister of agriculture announced that old people in Alberta would be taken care of by the Salvation Army. The government will assist the army in its care of the indigent old people by turning the former agricultural school at Gleichen over to the army practically rent free, inclusive of property up to twenty acres. "Eventide Home" has been chosen as the name for the new institution.

New additions to the mental hospital at Red Deer will be erected to accommodate forty new patients. Seventy per cent of those receiving care are of foreign birth thus the need of selecting the best type of immigrants to bring into the country Mr Hoadley stated. 5,000 persons had been inoculated for diphtheria alone and fine progress was being made in checking contagious and infectious disease.

Through Mrs Scott of Kinsella, who visited her old home in Scotland last winter, the W.I. was able to send personal greetings to the Women's Rural Institutes of Scotland. A portion of message received in return was as follows: "To all of you there God speed! Long may your lum reek, that is may you never lack a good fire to send it smoke up and in other words long life and prosperity to the Alberta Women's Institute.

Report of the standing committee on immigration was given by Mrs Wm. Barrs of Delta showing that 16,435 immigrants and 940 children were assisted by this department.

Mrs W. Huyck president in her address wished each institute branch would extend the right hand of friendship to all new settlers arriving from across the sea and interest them in their educational work along lines of public health.

Reports on Household Economics by Mrs J. Smith of Edmonton and on agriculture by Mrs M. A. Murphy of Cowley were very instructive and interesting. An address on "Tree planting on the prairie" by Mrs Ross representative from the Canadian Forestry Branch showed that since 1901 the department had sent out 87,500,000 trees and cuttings, these had been placed on 87,000 farms and only 5% had been failures. Plant trees, he suggested, they will make beautiful surroundings and fruit and vegetables may be produced without limit.

Mrs Nellie McClune M.L.A. began her address by pointing out that she was a speaker at the first meeting of the Women's Institute and had only missed one convention since that time. She said: How are we going to make a nation, unless the people all share strive to get the view point of all parts of Canada and not just a section. To illustrate this there is the cry for a great harbour at Vancouver, an equally urgent plea for the completion of the Hudson Bay Railway, while to the east one is aware that a great section wants the St. Lawrence deepened so sea going vessels may come up to Fort William to load grain, while the mariners are insistent that St. John and Halifax should be the port of outlet. All these schemes are very expensive and should they fail the Dominion government will have to pay and they are all sectional in their nature. What then will be Canada's solution? Co-operation.

Report on education and better schools by Mrs W.C. Short of Woodhead showed the work of the Institutes in donating prizes for school, installing playground equipment, musical instruments placed in schools, parent teachers associations formed, seems of money donated for school, scholarships free dental inspection etc. Regular attendance at school is essential, cost per pupil based on enrollment is $59.27 and based on daily attendance is $81.27 we are paying for education we do not get. She urged the mothers to remedy this.

DRILL NINETEEN WELLS AT WAINWRIGHT

Wainwright will see a tremendous influx of eastern capital within the next few months. No less than five Toronto companies four of which are close corporations, are included in a list of 13 concerns in the field, which will sink a total of 19 wells this summer as their initial program in sections 23 and 24, township 45-8-4. Over 50 outcrops will have been drilled in the Wainwright field by the end of the summer. It is estimated—Ex.

JACKIE COOGAN IN ROW WITH POLICE OVER PARKED CAR

The law, unfortunately takes no heed of film fame or standing, and Jackie Coogan, juvenile film star who comes to the theatre this week in his latest Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production, "Old Clothes" was held out court at Culver City, California, for a violation of the traffic ordinance of that town.

The little actor was tagged after he had left his machine, which is of Lilliputian size, but contains a real electric motor, in front of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios, where he was making his newest picture "Old Clothes".

As a matter of fact the "arrest" was framed by his father, Jack Coogan, Sr., because the car had been left in front of the studio against his orders to Jackie. Enlisting the aid of the desk sergeant at the police station and the patrolman who tagged Jackie, the elder Coogan sought to give his famous son a good lesson in the observance of parental and civil law.

It was not until he had been severely lectured by the sergeant and had borrowed $10 from his dad, who accompanied him to court, that the trick was revealed to him.

As a paper hanger, Jackie was a total loss. But he has here decorated the screen with the speediest laugh hit of his mile a second career. The kid himself, his partner, a lonely girl, and Dynamite "the worn out horse"—what a quartette to battle the world of men! You'll be delighted with the havoc of mischief they leave in their hilarious trail. It's a comedy delight don't fail to see it Wednesday and Thursday this week.

S.E. 35-41-4-4 and a survey be ordered.—Carried.

Moved by Jackson that Councillors Belton Martinelli and Scott be a delegation to look over the road north of section 12-41-4-4 and report at the next meeting.—Carried.

Moved by Whalstrom that the upset price of lands coming under the Tax Recovery Act be set at the amount of the claim of the Municipal District.—Carried.

Moved by Belton that a Fresno be ordered from the Richards on Road Machine Co for Division 3.—Carried.

Moved by Jackson that the report of the committee regarding the road work dispute be held over until the next meeting.—Carried.

During the meeting Mr Ritchie from the Department of Public Works went over the expenditure of the grant for this year with the Council and informed the Council that the grant would be $1500.

Moved by Belton that as the next regular meeting date comes during the week of the Edmonton Exhibition that the next meeting be held on July 10th.—Carried.

Moved by Jackson that this meeting

PREMIER BROWNLEE'S SPEECH AT THE U.F.A. CONVENTION

How do we face the problems of government that have come before us in the five years of our administration? The five years have not been easy years for any administration. I do not need to delay at any length in addressing an audience of this kind to point out to you that in 1921, 1922 and 1923 the prices of farm products had reached a very low ebb, that the farmers of this Province were passing through a difficult period at that time. The period of war is not the most difficult time, but the period of reconstruction following the war, when returned men are coming home and must be fitted in the period when prices of products are falling, when grave economic questions thrust themselves before the Government. For example the problem of public finance is made more difficult if the people are in such circumstances that they cannot pay taxes. That is obvious.

First Problem of U.F.A. Government. When we took office in 1921 we inherited a very serious problem. For the period of years the government of the day had been building up the services at the rate of one million dollars per year without a corresponding increase in sources of revenue.

In 1921, according to the budget speech of Mr Mitchell, the Government of that day increased the expenditure by a further two million dollars, without a corresponding increase in revenue and in addition borrowed $16,500,000 at nearly six percent. And if you figure it out you will find that the interest on that amount very nearly reaches one million dollars. One of the first problems of the new government was to find nearly an extra million dollars to pay interest on what the old government borrowed in 1921. If I had time I would show you by extracts from the speeches of the former Provincial Treasurer, the truth of what I say.

In 1921 we found a deficit of $2,100,000 and we faced the problem of finding besides a total of over $900,000 net interest making a total of over $3,000,000; that is the problem that the government was called upon to face. We could have balanced the budget in a year if we had decided to do this regardless of what it meant to the people; it was simply a process of arithmetic, striking off so much here and so much there; but we would have ruined some of the services of the Province which I think was the only policy. By a policy of gradual reduction of economy in administration we sought to hold things at a level until such time as the increasing revenues would bring us to a point where they would meet the necessary expenditures.

We have cut the cost of government in this Province by over a million dollars a year I could show you in all the different branches. I wish to take the time, savings that have been made by the Government in overhead expenses. Take the cost of printing. We have reduced the cost of printing since 1921 by $150,000 we have cut the cost of advertising in two. We have taken different offices like the Land Titles Offices in the cities of Edmonton and Calgary and we have cut the cost of operating these offices.

Minutes of the regular meeting of the Wainwright Agricultural Society held in the Council chambers on June 21st 1926 at 8 p.m.

President G. S. Baker in the chair. Directors present were: H. Pilgrim, F. Seabrook, J. Ruste, F. Watts, S.R. Bowerman, A. V. Harden and J. Cuthbertson.

Watts-Harden—That minutes of last regular meeting be adopted as read.—Carried.

The Secretary reported that the total membership paid up and promised amounted to 85.

Cuthbertson-Pilgrim—That as the membership was so far short of the required number and the allotted date set for the Fair so near at hand, that the holding of a Fair be laid over for this year.—Carried.

Bowerman-Harden—That this Society keep its membership in the Alberta Fair's Association paid up.—Carried.

Cuthbertson-Watts—That all members who have paid for their membership in the society this year can have their fees returned if they so desire.—Carried.

Bowerman-Watts—That Secretary be authorized to issue cheques for outstanding indebtedness.—Carried.

Cuthbertson-Baker—That Bond covering Sec-Treas. be returned and Co be advised that as no Fair was being held this year the bond was unnecessary.—Carried.

Bowerman-Harden—That the Annual meeting of the Wainwright Agricultural Society be held in Council chamber December 11th 1926 at 2 p.m.

As this concluded the business the meeting was adjourned.

Mr A. Love was the successful tender for the cement sidewalk from Main street to the Alberta Government Telephone property, at the rate of 20 cents per square foot surface.

Your committee would suggest that all those having inside toilets, or outside privies, have their names and locations in at the office of the Secretary Treasurer, so that a schedule can be arranged for the handling of these premises.

We would also recommend that salary of Mr Zimmerman be at the rate of $85.00 per month beginning June 1st 1926.

Knutsen-Forster—That the report of Public Works and Scavenging Committee be adopted.

Davidson-Knowles—That this Council resolve itself into a committee of the whole to consider quotations from different firms re purchase of boiler for Electric Utility.—Carried.

The Council going into a Committee of the whole the Mayor appointed Councillor Davidson to the Chair. The Committee on rising reported as follows:

That the Secretary be instructed to communicate with the representative of the Crane Limited for the purpose of meeting the Electric Utility Committee so as to go fully into terms and specifications re the purchase of a new boiler.

Davidson-Knowles—That the report of the Committee of the whole be adopted.—Carried.

Davidson-Knowles—That Councillor Telford be appointed Deputy-Mayor for the ensuing three months.—Carried.

The Council then adjourned.

KLING-DEL-REFINERIES SECURE CHARTER FOR WAINWRIGHT PLANT

A company known as the Kling-Del Refineries Ltd. Capitalized at $165,000.00 have secured a charter from the Dominion Government for the erection of a refining plant at Wainwright.

Company shares is held at $10.00 each, all common stock no par value. The object of the Company is to extract gasoline oils and other by-products such as asphalt, paint and a special brand of road oil from the crude product of the Wainwright field.

According to Mr C. S. Klingerman one of the promoters of the company The Kling-Del Refineries Ltd. have a signed contract with Mr J. W. Wrather of Long Beach Calif. to build a 1000 bbl. plant at Wainwright and Mr Wrather is now in California investigating the different types of machinery used in the manufacture of asphalt and other by-products of crude oil.

In support of Mr Klingerman's statement he has handed us the following letter for publication.

Amarillo, Texas May 19th 1926

Mr C. S. Klingerman Wainwright, Alta.

Dear Klingerman— Just received your wire of the 18th. Also your letter of the 11th. Note both, John is here at work and tickled with the prospects of building a plant at Wainwright.

I tell you that is the wisest decision you could have made, for we will build a real refinery and asphalt plant there and will make the whole bunch sit up and take notice to Wainwright.

The people there should join in with you for this will give the producers a market for their oil and will help build up the field as well as the town and all together start the ball rolling.

We started this field off by building at Panhandle and now it is the biggest field in the world. I am just carried away with the idea of building there at Wainwright and we will build a real refinery and show them that you and we can do it.

Rush this matter so we can start work immediately and get the plant running before fall and cold weather.

We are ready when you are, and get as much as $10,000.00 in the bank so can order the materials, for it will take time to get stuff there, but I have it all lined up and ready to shoot.

We are with you and going strong (Signed)

J. D. Wrather

Mr Klingerman also gives the assurance that none but the latest machinery prepared

On Saturday June 26th the Political Campaign in the Wainwright constituency will wind-up in the Elite Theatre Wainwright, with a mass meeting in the interests of the U.F.A. Candidate J. R. Love starting at 8 p.m. The Hon. Herbert Greenfield will be one of the main speakers on the program. Besides addresses by Mr Greenfield and Mr J. Love, Mr W. T. Hays of Edmonton will again entertain a Wainwright audience with his much appreciated solos.

All are cordially invited to attend this final meeting and hear the issues discussed by supporters of the present administration.

EDMONTON FAIR FEATURES SEVERAL BIG ATTRACTIONS

"The biggest and the best fair ever held in Edmonton" is the consensus of opinion of those who are familiar with the arrangements for the Edmonton Exhibition and Historical Campaign, July 12 to 17.

There have never been such outstanding head-line attractions, The famous H. M. Coldstream Guards Band, universally recognized as one of the premier musical organizations of the world, will in itself be worth a great deal more than the cost of admission. Then there is a grand Historical Pageant, celebrating the coming-of-age of the city and province, with a cast of six hundred persons, all working together in a mass of color and a maze of movement on a huge, specially-constructed stage. This mammoth spectacle will tell the thrilling story of the development of Edmonton and western Canada.

Other attractions include district exhibits of agricultural and dairy products from a number of ejectional districts in northern and central Alberta some of the finest grand-stand attractions ever seen in the west; the renowned Johnny J. Jones midway shows; exceptionally brilliant fireworks displays; horse races each afternoon; valuable collection of oil paintings from the Metropolitan Museum of Art, New York; championing cat and dog shows; special classes for canaries; and special sweet pea displays.

Entries for the Exhibition will close on June 30.

Every will be used as Mr Wrather is investigating all the larger plants in California before drafting his plans.

Messrs Klingerman and Riedel of the Alberta Oil Co. have opened an office in town and are busy preparing a prospectus of the New Refinery Co.

A pamphlet giving full detail is now in preparation.

SATAN IN SABLES

Copyright 1925 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"Satan in Sables" with Lowell Sherman

He had tried but failed to prevent Michael from keeping his headstrong engagement with her; there was nothing more that he could do until the evening. Then he would ask out Mademoiselle Dolores and world's part with her to an understanding. There was nothing like a bribe to shake a fellow's thoughts into clarity! Ordering his favor to the waiter, Michael rode out into the night, the Bois de Boulogne. Batsy, his second herald, the quack and the clear blue sky overhead, an even brighter promise, but external influences were lost on Michael as he rode along brooding over the unexpected happenings of the past few hours.

Suddenly he heard his name called. "I was Armand, cantering towards him."

You must have been in a rowdy study, my dear Michael! Armand chuckled as he reined his horse down to pace with Michael's. "I have been calling you for some time, and you did not the slightest attention. How is your dear fellow and how is our head-ache last night? My own head feels at least six times its normal size and the root of every hair is aching."

"Well don't you're not bad! You must have committed the vulgar error of not drinking enough wine, my dear Armand!" Michael criticized suavely for I have not the slightest trace of a headache."

"I've certainly got one bad enough for two heads. See, what a friend I am—even to the extent of assuming your headache! Bye the bye, did you find out by what mysterious channels your little Columbine escaped? I would like to see her again. Such a figure, ad such a dancer! She could win my heart very easily."

"The secret of her departure is in your hands, Armand! You were the only one with her on the balcony when she bolted. Did I tell you that I lost my watch box last night?"

"The Yerdoff emerald?"

"Yes, I discovered the loss when I took my watch out as I was retiring. Do you think that one of the band of street revellers took a liking to it and relieved you of it, then?"

"I don't know—but circumstantial evidence might very easily prove a case against Colette!" Michael answered slowly, reciting then how she had handled it. "But, in spite of all that Armand, I do not believe that the little girl took it."

Upon what do you base that broad trustfulness?"

"Solely upon my reputation as a canny judge of human nature. I would be the most surprised man in the world if Colette turned out to be a thief!"

"Well, my friend, I hope you are right—but—" and Armand chuckled cynically.

Michael now was looking after his brother, trying to protect him.

"Ah but she had the upper hand and she would not release it."

"May I ask," she fenced, "what your reason is, for becoming so inquisitive about my movements? A few hours ago, you brutally told me that you had not the slightest interest in them. But now—"

"Since you force me, I will tell you all! Michael said bitterly. 'Paul and I had some words over you this morning with the result that he left my home!'

"I feel flattered," Dolores said, with a slight bow. "I wonder how poor little me came to be the reason for a quarrel between two devoted brothers?"

"It was because I asked him not to keep his luncheon engagement with you," Michael said, taking refuge in truth for a change.

"I suppose you thought that I would probably corrupt his morals, eh? Her face flashed the sharp fire of womanly anger and scorn as she rose to go."

"Remain just a moment longer, please," Michael said, "I may as well admit I would much prefer that you have nothing to do with Paul I need not go into the reasons but they are solely on his account. I am sure you will appreciate my situation knowing as you well do how I have kept him away from the charms of ladies of the world!"

"That is what you prefer, eh? Dolores' voice was as silky as the fur of a tiger's belly. 'Then let me say this much to you, Michael—I intend to see a good deal of Paul, not only because he wants it so but also for particular reasons of my own!'

Michael felt the futile rage of a caged lion. 'May I ask what those particular reasons are?'

"You may certainly ask even if I think it none of your business!" Dolores purred. 'At last I will say that the reasons are known only to Paul and myself. Now, Monsieur, I regret that I am forced to tear myself from your delightful company, but as I reminded you before, I have an engagement—with Paul!'

"Just a moment more! To put the matter in a brutal fashion, I think that I understand you perfectly Mademoiselle. Your sudden interest in my brother is actuated solely by a desire to be revenged to me because I requested that our romance—if it might be so termed—should cease. I admit that your plan is a clever one but cannot we come to some understanding and agreement? You will not find me unreasonable. I assure you!"

"What a miraculous transformation!" Dolores taunted, her beautiful face aflame with passion. 'But let me recite a few facts for you, Michael! We met at a dinner party a year ago. I interested you. You showered me with attentions and devotions that I thought you alone were capable of offering. I never doubted your sincerity. And then—and then—" her voice trailed down to self-virtuous whimpers—"I grew to love you I gave you the best in my life. It was true love, too, Michael!"

Dolores voice quavered but after a struggle she reformed the hardness into it. "You accepted it all drank in the bloom only so soon to tire and cast me off like a wilted flower! Now because I have reached a venerable age in your selfish life, you ask me, and doubtless expect me—to cease attacking you in that spot. By doing so I would win thanks from you and that would be all. Would thanks give me back that year of my life? Would thanks efface memories. No, Michael! Dolores walked close to him, her voice ringing with challenge. 'My chance to repay the score has come! You were the one for whose sake I have gone through the lowest depths of hell—and now, if my actions with Paul do not make you suffer as much as I have suffered it will not be my fault! Goodnight, Michael and pleasant dreams!'

Dolores drew her cape closely around her and walked out like the wrathfully fanning wane of a sliver moon.

CHAPTER FIVE

Long after Dolores had gone—long after night had fallen—Michael sat alone in his library tormented by an obsession of unhappiness, a sense of utter loneliness, Dolores' ultimatum had touched him, not so much because he knew full well that her threat would be carried out as because of uneasiness over her swift turn against him. He had broken off their affair little thinking that she had been so deeply in love with him; he had always thought that she regarded their romance much as he did—like one of many in their mutually full, carefree lives. And he still honestly thought so.

Colette's clothes were wringing wet albeit the evident sincerity in her attitude had shaken him a bit.

There was an undeniable fascination and charm about Dolores, he reflected. Paul or any other man would readily enough fall a victim to her wiles. But it would be savage of her to wreck Paul's life just in a spirit of revenge. God! That thought was terrible. Michael clenched his hands as he realized that if Dolores ruined Paul he would be the one really responsible.

He, Michael, who had always kept Paul away from temptation, only to find the boy thrust into a veritable rev. cloud of it now, solely on account of him.

The life Michael was living seemed suddenly stripped of its fascination and glamor; only the stark husks remained—the husks of regret and bitter memories and the self-reproach of a wasted life.

Moodily pacing to the window, Michael noticed that it had commenced to rain through the cascading panes he watched the grey sheets whipped past the halos of the street lamps by

LET'S PLAY THE GAME FAIR

A great many who are making their homes in Western Canada are thinking far too much of the immediate dollar. They are doing so in most cases at the expense of the community in which they are living. To save a five-cent piece, yes, and frequently to buy inferior goods, they send their money five hundred miles away, when their own home town merchant could not only give better value, but equally as good a price. We ask the question, "How can any town or village live, how can it be attractive, how can it be a social centre, when the merchants and retailers do not share in the prosperity of the district?" Why should our towns and villages be any different than they are in other countries? Take Great Britain, for instance. In Great Britain any village that can draw the business of a seven-mile radius is a thriving, prosperous and enterprising centre. It is a village that shows its prosperity by having well built houses, churches, assembly hall, moving picture theatre, town hall, and in fact everything that makes for a prosperous district and a happy social life. How is this possible. You may ask. Simply because it is a custom and habit of the farmers and community dwellers to spend their money where they make it. They have too much pride in their town to wreck it by making their purchases outside.

In Western Canada some of the community dwellers take pride in being able to walk into the local merchant's store and tell him how he can beat his price by five or ten cents on the dollar. Worse than this, it is estimated that 95% of the mail order business is placed by farmers who do not even give the local merchant a chance to figure on their requirements. I wonder how many of our community friends appreciate the fact that if it were not for their home town merchants who contribute in the way of taxes to the up-keep of roads, schools, bridges, churches, social work, etc., how much they (the farmers in these districts) would have to pay in increased taxes. All these things referred to have to be maintained, kept up by the retailer and others who dwell in the village centres but the mail order concerns, while draining every district of a vast proportion of local business, never contribute one cent to the up-keep of these institutions and activities.

Now then, neighbors, isn't it about time that we woke up to the seriousness of this situation? Isn't it about time that we began playing the same fair with our home town merchant, neighbor and friend, who does not ask for any particular favor, but simply requests that you give him an equal chance to figure on your requirements? If Western Canada is to thrive, it can only be done by co-operation, and in your particular community if you will do your share in building up, improving and bettering the conditions by patronizing your home town merchants, you will then be doing your share in bringing about the same healthy condition of the towns and villages in this country as is now so prominent in Great Britain and other foreign countries. "Spend your money where you make it," is a pretty good slogan for us all to follow.

PREMIER BROWNLEE'S SPEECH AT LOCAL U F A CONVENTION

from $241,909.2 in 1921 to $156,753.41 in 1925, and we are giving exactly the same services. The Government has been criticized for its travelling expenses. We have reduced our travelling expenses from $501,785.95 for all departments in 1921 to $368,200.31 in 1925, a saving of $133,585.64. In the telephone department after adding many miles of new lines, we cut down the cost of staff by over $400,000 per year. There are more telephones in use today which are maintained by three hundred less employees than it required in 1921. These are only a few items of the economies that we have been able to put into effect, and we haven't weakened the public services in any way. We don't balance the budget in the first year or in two years. We can cut down the deficit very considerably, and finally last year we were able to show a surplus of $188,000. There have even attempts made to question that surplus. That surplus was just as honest and correct a surplus as any that have ever occurred in the history of this province. Not one figure was manipulated. We came before the house this year with a budget showing a surplus and we are determined that from now on the province must live within its revenue.

Now let us look at another province, very briefly. In Ontario they had the same problem. Coming into office in 1923 with a very big deficit they did not balance the budget in one or two, or three years.

We have no apologies to make for the manner in which we faced the deficits of this Province. Some of our opponents have been going up and down the province demanding the balancing of the budget. Well, these opponents have ceased that criticism today, but have turned it into new lines, and today they say this government has to a shocking degree increased the capital debt of this Province and they point to the fact that for a period of five years we have increased the capital debt by $22,000,000. Well, I don't think that a criticism like that from any member of the Liberal party is quite in order especially when they increased the capital debt by $16,500,000 in one year. When a government comes into office it is in honor bound to carry out the commitments of its former government.

Since 1921 our capital borrowing has decreased rapidly year by year until last year we got along with borrowing only $2,500,000, the lowest borrowing of any year since 1918. To day we are holding our borrowing at a minimum but don't run away with the idea that we are going to get along without capital borrowing in this province. We are building in a new growing province, and we are building for many years ahead. We are laying the foundation for many generations to come. If you want a good highway system, it involves capital borrowings. You cannot build a highway system or a telephone system on current revenues. It is good business to make people 40 years from now pay their share of the cost of building these improvements and services.

Dealing with finance, I will close with this one word, that we are not satisfied with our present system of finance. During the five years of our administration many more or less serious questions have arisen as between municipalities and the Government, such as the care of widowed mothers, the care of delinquents, and in order to be sure that we have the finances of this province on a safe and satisfactory basis, some months ago we appointed an advisory board to work with the Provincial Treasurer to investigate all of these different revenues of taxation, to eliminate friction between the municipalities and the Government, and find out the extent by which the cost of Government can be reduced.

Reduced Taxation
Mr. McGillivray says that if people will make him premier he will reduce taxation. It is the easiest thing in the world to make promises. I would rather lose an election than come before the people of this province and say one thing which I didn't believe I could carry into effect. As a result of the work of the Equalization Assessment Board the assessment on land has been reduced on an average by 2 per cent. The supplementary revenue tax is based on that, and you will pay on an average 20 per cent less supplementary tax this year than last. To this extent the government has been able to reduce taxation, even at the end of the difficult period we have just come through. We believe there is a possibility of relieving the burden of taxation on the people of this province, but the extent of that relief will depend on the result of the election.

This is heard on which are represented urban and rural municipalities. We've had our five year period of problem of finance, practical recovered. The Government that takes office, facing what we believe to be improved times, will not be worried by the severe financial problem which had to be the first consideration of the present administration during the last five years.

We are criticized for inaction, Let

RECIPES FOR MILK DRINKS

It is universally known that milk besides being a refreshing drink is a very valuable food supplying the necessary elements for growth and health in an easily digestible form. Unfortunately many adults, and some children have a distaste for milk in its natural state. The Dominion Department of Agriculture, has just issued a small circular distributed free by its Publications Branch, Ottawa, which gives a number of recipes for milk drinks to suit any taste. They are easy to prepare, delicious and refreshing. In making them, ordinary household flavouring extracts, spices, juices from fresh or canned fruits, or fruit syrups may be used; soda water may or may not be added. These recipes will be especially valuable in the case of children who have a fancied dislike for milk and for invalids whose food consists mainly of liquids and who would not relish a change in the flavour and appearance of the milk they drink.

FIELD DAY AT LACOMBE EXPERIMENTAL STATION

What is the best grass for hay?
What is the best grass for pasture?
What is the best silage crop?
Every farmer in Alberta is interested in these questions. Every variety of grass and silage crop which gives promise of success in Central Alberta is now growing at the Experimental Station. Come and see these crops growing. Learn the best methods for seeding and harvesting, and join in the discussion.

Some of the hay crops are alfalfa, sweet clover, red clover, alsike, white Dutch timothy, bromo and rye grasses. Some of the annual hay crops are Sudan grass, Tef, grass millets and green feed mixtures.

Root crops include mangels, sugar beets, carrots and turnips.
If possible, come early and see the grounds and live stock before noon. Hot water will be provided for those bringing their lunches.

In Time of Plenty

THE farmer knows—better than anyone else—how uncertain the seasons are. Careful farming and a little foresight when crops are good will help wonderfully when a lean year comes.

Here are a few suggestions:
Keep adding high-grade animals to your live stock.
Study the best methods of crop rotation.

Select the seed best suited to your locality—successful crops can come only from clean, vigorous seed.

Make your credit good at the Bank by paying up your loans and depositing something for the rainy day.

a snarling wind.

"Only a little while ago," he brooded aloud. "The Rue Chalign was filled with merry-makers. Now it is dark, deserted and stormbound. Only a few hours ago, life to me was a continuous round of happiness, with its cup filled to overflowing. Now, the cup has been emptied and the dregs are black and bitter."

"The dregs, M'sieu. What do you know about the dregs of life, may I ask?"

"Whirling in sheer astonishment, Michael saw Colette standing by him. Her clothes were wringing wet, a small trickle of water fell from her hat but in spite of her discomforts she was the same merry, mischievous twinkle in her eyes, the same determined tilt to her little chin, as she re-michael's gaze.

Sergius came in breathlessly, indignantly, but went out as quickly at Michael's gruff command.

"Colette," Michael smiled, "what brings you here?"

"Well, I ran past your butler when he opened the door," she apologized "for I have something to give you."

She held out the Yvervedoff emerald. "It must have broken loose when you carried me to the couch. I found it fastened to my costume. I'd have brought it to you before, M'sieu, but I—well, I was prevented."

"Pity for the little girl who stood wet and shivering before him, animated

Michael; he was happy, too, for she had not failed his first good judgment of her. Her act stood out in thoughts left with him by Dolores. He felt moved, as no experience or person had ever moved him before.

"Little Columbine," gravely he put his hands on her shoulders and looked into the unflinching blue eyes—"what you have done means far more to me than you will ever know, and I cannot thank you enough. It was only the return of the emerald. It was—well, I just can't explain, but I am deeply grateful."

"What else could I do, but return it," she asked naively. "Surely you did not think that I was a thief."

"No, never he vigorously shook his head. "One day I will tell you why it has meant so much to me but—but—" now—look You are soaked to the skin. Contritely he ran for Sergius "I am a brute to let you stand so. Colette. You must be made warm and dry."

Sergius, appearing, was ordered to light a log fire in the great fire-place of the library.

"No, M'sieu," Colette protested, "I will go home and save you all this worry."

Michael laughed. For the first time that day he was happy.

"No you won't—yet not, ma cherie. I want to talk to you. But first you must dry your things." Michael whispered a few words in Sergius' ear, and that worthy disappeared—to return in a few minutes with a pair of Michael's bedroom slippers, and a luxurious feathery nest of soft, white fur-trimmed silk.

"I must apologize for the slippers, Colette," he laughed, "but they are the best I could do. And now I will leave the room while you slip off your dress and don this robe. Your things will soon dry in front of the fire. Just call me when you are ready."

He shut the door after him and Colette was left alone in the great luxurious library. She hesitated a moment then, hastily took off her dress and shoes, slipped her tiny feet into Michael's slippers and put on the negligee. Never in her life had she seen such a beautiful garment. She nestled down into the warmth and coziness of it with a contented little sigh.

Lost in childish luxuriating, she failed to hear repeated knockings on the door. Finally, the door was opened slightly, while Michael's voice called.

"Are you alive? I have knocked and knocked until I haven't a knuckle left to knock with! May I come in?"

"Oh, pardon, M'sieu. Indeed, do come in—to tell you the truth, I was lost to everything else but this gorgeous robe, this glowing fire. How I love such things. She pressed her face against the soft fur and sighed.

"You look charming in it and if you really like it, I hope you will accept it as a slight token of my gratitude for what you have done!"

Colette was overcome with joy; and Michael silenced her ineffectual misgivings.

"Now let me draw your chair close to the fire, so that you will not catch cold. Tell me, pray, how you found my job? I had given up all hopes of ever seeing it again."

Colette explained.

Then, "I wanted to return it to you the moment I found it but—but—her eagerness trailed away in confusion."

Michael prompted her kindly; "I suppose you were busy with your work or something like that. Anyway it is here now so don't worry your little head any longer. But you seem unhappy over something," he added, noticing a tear roll down her cheek.

Michael quickly went to her and patted her shoulder.

"The strain of the past few hours and the fear of what might follow when he discovered that the jewel was gone from his drawer, were too much for Colette. Try as she might, she could not prevent an outburst of sobs and tears.

Michael quickly went to her and patted her shoulder.

"There is something on your mind—I want you to tell me what it is. Possibly I can help you."

But fear sealed Colette's lips, even as it had loosened the floodgates of her eyes.

"They say that it is a wonderful relief to cry sometimes; but the relief is reserved for women evidently. You can trust me with your trouble, little Columbine, for I want to be a friend and in return, I—well, I need a friend too!" he said a little sadly.

"You need a friend, M'sieu? You with your money and this magnificent home, and with your circle of fine friends? You need a friend? I cannot understand it!"

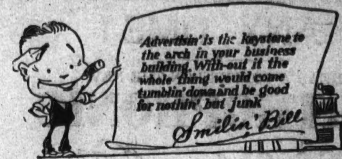

"But I can truthfully say that this moment I feel as though I were the loneliest man in Paris. Friends? Yes, I have friends by the hundreds, probably. But not one whom I feel is close enough to share my worries. You may have felt that way yourself—one may know plenty of people and yet not one who seems to possess the responsive sympathetic spark that denotes genuine friendship. It isn't a question of how long one has to know another person before they may become friends. No, it's just whether that hidden bond of being in tune with each other exists. Why, I feel that I could get more sympathy from you than from any of my friends who attended the party last night."

"Then let me help you, M'sieu, Colette said impulsively, "that is if I can."

"It seems to me that we need each other," Michael said after a pause, "but my troubles can wait! Just now I want to know what it is that worries you so much. Is it in connection with my emerald?"

Colette found herself telling him

CONSERVATIVE PRINCIPLES

ARE RESTATED BY THE

CONSERVATIVE LEADER

A. A. McGillivray Sets Forth in Plain Language What the Provincial Conservative Party Stands for in Coming General Election.

Co-Operative Marketing Extension is Advocated

Proportion of Monies Expended on Roads to Go Toward the Maintenance of Country Roads as Well as Main Highways—Encourage the Inflow of Capital and Immigration to Supplement Efforts of the Dominion Government.

PEAKING at Rockyford on Thursday afternoon, June 18th, in support of Hugh Miller, Conservative candidate in the Glendon riding, A. A. McGillivray, leader of the provincial Conservative party, reiterated the items in the policy of the party that he has stated from different platforms in Alberta since being elected leader in August 1925.

In his usual lightning style, Mr. McGillivray reviewed the record of the old Liberal administrations and the record of the present government. Summing up his appeal to the electorate following the declaration of political principles, Mr. McGillivray said the Liberal party cannot go back into power and its record cannot be hidden under the cloak of one new convert.

Give Them Change
The present government has failed to cope with public questions, the chief of which are redistribution, the northern railways, material resources and the finance problem that it has had to face, then why not give the provincial Conservative party a chance to demonstrate what it can do? Mr. McGillivray left here at 8 p.m. for Oyen and other points in Acadia riding.

In reiterating points in the Conservative policy that have been enunciated by him from many platforms since he took the leadership of the party in August, 1925, Mr. McGillivray said "I have not gone in for the form of political advertising that is known as the manifesto. I observe that the Liberal leader leaned toward them in 1921. He issued one which commenced as follows: 'Truer representative government to replace the party system. Independent candidate in West Calgary outlines constructive proposals for the establishment of a democratic government freed from partisan ship and partyism. Proportional representation truly reflects popular will. Patronage system which is vital to the maintenance of party system, and is today a national scandal will disappear under the reformed method of election.'"

"In so much as the new manifesto of the Liberal leader commenced as follows: 'Liberal manifesto—J. T. Shaw, Liberal leader, issues statement of party policy' and in so much as this latest manifesto by Mr. Shaw, in so far as it does not consist of copybook platitudes and glittering generalities, is partly taken from the pronouncements of the Conservative party it may be well for me to restate the position of the provincial Conservative party upon some of the provincial issues, a position taken and given public expression to on the platforms of this country at times when Mr. Shaw was still an Independent.

Conservative Platform
The provincial Conservative party stands for the following:

1. Redistribution whereby the number of constituencies will be reduced so that there will not be more than 45 members in the legislature. This reduction to be made having due regard both to population and to the sparsely settled areas.

2. Reduction in the amount paid as seasonal indemnities of members by $500.

3. A determined effort to make of the United Farmers of Alberta organization something more than a mere political machine and to advance its development along social and economic lines.

4. The encouragement of co-operative marketing. Even as supporters of the Conservative party brought Saprop to Alberta without thought of political advantage, so will the Conservative party support any movement for the benefit of the farmers, without seeking political glorification.

Money for Roads
5. A fair proportion of the monies expended on roads being deflected from spectacular trunk roads to farm roads.

6. In so far as it lies within the legislative control of the province, keeping checks over grain elevators with respect to the weighing and grading of grain.

7. A real soil survey of the drouth areas of the south by the greatest agriculturalists available.

8. Putting our provincial telephone system on a business basis.

9. Furthering any practical scheme providing for rural credits.

10. Equality of men and women under the law.

11. A recognition of the fact that labor unions are as much an essential product of modern economic life as are the large corporations and that they tend to bring about equality in wage bargaining that would not exist if the individual had to bargain with the great corporations.

Right of Appeal
12. Providing a right of appeal under the Workmen's Compensation Act from an autocratic compensation board.

13. Raising the scale of compensation for railwaymen in non-negligence cases to the level enjoyed by other classes of workmen.

14. Equitable distribution of the burden of taxation for upkeep of the schools.

15. A most careful consideration of all possible ways and means for providing security of tenure and a practical pension scheme for teachers.

16. An examination of the school courses by education technicians with a view to making certain that our student body is not faced with an over loaded curriculum.

17. Revaluation and sale of the proper terms of the E.D. & B.C. and Central Canada railways, with a consequent saving of nearly one million dollars a year.

18. The obtaining of our natural resources on fair and equitable terms without any school question or other strings attached thereto. (The provincial Conservative party has stood on this since 1905.)

Balancing the Budget
19. The yearly balancing of the budget. In September, 1925, while advocates of this government were still saying that it could not be done without incurring essential services, the Conservative party took the position, as it does now, that the budget could and be balanced in each year.

20. A complete reversal of the former Liberal and the present government's attitude toward capital by encouraging in every possible way those who have money to invest in the exploration and utilization of our natural resources of all kinds.

21. A provincial immigration and colonization policy to supplement efforts of the Dominion government to get people and to retain them when we get them here, so that with more people amongst whom to distribute the load, we may hope to cope with our debt and our ever increasing burden of taxation. The provincial Conservative party is determined to bring about an inflow of capital and of people, because the future prosperity of our people is inseparably associated with these.

22. One system of voting for both city and rural constituencies.

23. An immediate decision as the Spray Lakes water power project.

24. More local autonomy in municipal affairs.

Sponsored by Provincial Conservative Committee.

The Official Organ For the Province

Had to Say of Capt. Shaw, Liberal Leader, As Late As Sept. 15, 1925

CAPT. J. T. SHAW

CAPTAIN SHAW

"The announcements that Captain Shaw, who has represented West Calgary in the House of Commons as an Independent member for the past four years will not be a candidate in the forthcoming election will be received with the deepest regret, not only in all parts of Alberta, but among forward-looking people throughout the Dominion.

"Capt. Shaw's withdrawal from public life would be a very serious loss to Canada. He made his mark in the last parliament, and he is recognized today as a parliamentarian of independent spirit and of out-standing ability and courage. He is one of a still small group of men in the federal sphere who have been paving the way for a real advance from the petty personal politics of today, to constructive and genuinely progressive statesmanship. His early return to public life will be hoped for by all who are familiar with his record of service in the parliament recently dissolved.

"Since the announcement of Mr. Shaw's intention not to be a candidate very great pressure has been brought to bear upon him in Calgary in the hope that he will reconsider his position. We trust that he may yet decide to allow his name to go before the electors on October 29th."

SETTLERS SUCH AS THESE COMING BY HUNDREDS... POLISH FLAPPERS AT ONCE ADOPT CANADIAN STYLES

SCANDINAVIANS of the best agricultural type, many of them bringing money to buy land, are arriving in Winnipeg these days literally by the hundreds. The above photograph, taken a few days ago at the Union station, is a fair sample of the type of immigrant that Canada is getting from Europe this season, and the picture speaks for itself as to the standard of settler. During the past several days many such Norwegians, Swedes and Danes have been included in the large parties transported from the seaboard by special Canadian National trains. They are placed by the C.N.R. Colonization Department in positions on farms throughout the prairie provinces, with the idea of working for a year or two to learn Canadian farm methods before taking up land of their own.

The last week in March saw the largest movement of immigrants to Canada since pre-war years and the outstanding feature in connection therewith is the vastly superior type which is coming to this country under the present immigration regulations. Also, during that period a party made up of 57 British families from the S.S. Antonio reached the west under the Empire Settlement Act to establish 6,000 British families on the land in the Dominion. Large as this party was, it formed but a part of the British group which crossed the Atlantic in charge of the Canadian National Railway, there being in addition 280 single men, 70 boys and 16 single women. All these people, numbering 689 souls, travelled to Canada under the special supervision of Mr. J. S. McGowan, director in London of the C.N.R. lecture course in Canadian farming.

The inset might be entitled "Canadians by Conviction." It shows a couple of charming young Polish girls, Anela and Anna Kudrel, who visited the shingle bobby in Montreal between trains. When interviewed at Winnipeg on route with their parents and little brother to their new home at Steinbach, Man., they were very proud of their Canadian hair-cut and showed no hesitation when invited to have their picture taken.—J. everything about Emilie, about herself and about her fears for little Billy. Again tears brimmed in her eyes as she said to Michael with a helpless little gesture:

"Ah, M'sieu, if Billy is taken away from me, then all in life worth living for has gone, and I would care little what happened to me. But it seems so unfair, so unjust, to think that both of us must be punished for trying to be honorable. Is there no justice in the world? I feel so helpless."

Michael sat quietly for a little while how wonderful it would be, I've done. Then, "Poor little girl," he said gently everything in my power M'sieu, to my life has been a struggle, hasn't make a man of my brother-in-law, but I am sure, I'll ever be I can be I have given up hope. By his actions he has killed every bit of feeling I

to cover a case like yours. I shall see "I will be in your debt for the rest of my lawyer in the morning. It will be of my life. M'sieu, Do you know the possible to prove your brother-in-law's absolute unfitness to bring up the boy and then Billy can be legally entrusted to your care. After that, if Emilie persisted in bothering or threatening you, we could have him put away. I imagine that a careful scrutiny of his past record would not be very welcome to him. Besides, the sort of man who is from me, then all in life worth living for has gone, and I would care little what happened to me. But it seems so unfair, so unjust, to think that both of us must be punished for trying to be honorable. Is there no justice in the world? I feel so helpless."

to cover a case like yours. I shall see "I will be in your debt for the rest of my lawyer in the morning. It will be of my life. M'sieu, Do you know the one goal of Billy and myself? Ah, and don't ask with a smile. It is to be away in the country, on a real farm where there are lots of birds and trees where I could earn enough money by making flowers the same as I do now but with the glorious thought that we would never have to go to the city again. Ah, you may be laughing and I do not blame you, but I assure you that to us it would be the most wonderful event in our lives.

Colette's eagerness and enthusiasm stirred Michael. He admired this slip of a girl for the fight she was waging for her visions, her dreams. His own life was so vividly different. What ideals had he ever fought for? What struggle had he ever made for some definite goal? He had merely drifted along on a pleasant tide of luxury and idleness. But this slender little girl had fought—was fighting—for every inch of the way.

"No, Colette," he answered gravely, "your ideals are not to be laughed at. On the contrary, I was occupied with two different thoughts—one of admiration for you, the other of scorn for myself."

"Scorn? But why, M'sieu. I see no cause for that."

"Unfortunately, I do. But that is neither here nor there—and if I can do something to lighten your load why that is one good deed accomplished at least, isn't it?"

"It won't be the only good deed you have ever done, I am sure, in spite of what you say, Colette said as she stood up. "Now, I must be off for home as Billy may be wanting me. See, my clothes are dry."

"I will step outside until you've dressed and will order my car in the meantime," said Michael, though he was reluctant to let her go.

She dressed swiftly. "I did not keep you waiting so long this time, said when Michael knocked, but there is no need to call your car. It has stopped raining and I can walk home very quickly. She ran to the window. "See, the stars are all out again!"

Suddenly she drew back with a frightened exclamation:

"Why, what's the matter?" Michael rushed to her side.

She was deathly pale. "Look by the light there!" she whispered, and Michael peering out from behind her curtain, saw a sinister figure leaning against a street lamp.

"It's Emilie," Colette went on. "Oh, how did he trace me here and what is going to happen? I'm afraid! She trembled violently, and Michael put his arm around her.

"Don't be alarmed. We will clip Emilie's wings in a very short while."

"You don't know him," she cried. He stops at nothing! I must get home though, to see if he has taken Billy away."

"Then I will go with you. There is my car driving up now. But, first let me telephone for a moment. Bye the bye, what is your address?"

Colette gave it to him, and he went out for a few minutes.

"All ready?" he asked on his return. "Then let us go!"

Emilie was not to be seen as they walked out to the car. Probably lurking in the shadows somewhere, Colette thought, he undoubtedly would follow her home. As long as Michael was with her she felt safe, but what would happen after her new friend had left?

When they arrived at her apartment, Colette dismissed the woman who had been watching Billy. Then, at her invitation, Michael sat down. He was depressed by the poverty revealed by the furniture and other things. But he also saw the neatness, the tidiness, the scrupulous cleanliness.

"Our little home is very different from yours, M'sieu," Colette said with an apologetic little shrug. "Nevertheless, it is home to use, and we love it."

"Rightly so, Michael answered. IT wagers that you and Billy have many a romp in this room eh?"

OUR COUNTRY—OUR HOME

(By Request)

There is a well-loved empire.

A motherland so true.

O'er which the Union Jack flies—

The strong red, white, and blue.

In every clime it flutters.

O'er mountain, plain, and crag.

All honor to the motherland!

All honor to the flag!

There is a vast Dominion

Beneath this motherland

From shore to shore she stretches.

The dear old mapleland;

We see the flowing wheat fields

"Way out in Prairie West"

Where sun is always shining—

Yes, Canada's the best.

There is a prairie province.

A part of this domain.

There's mining, fishing, hunting.

Alberta is its name.

No more those red-skinned hunter

Will chase the herd alone.

For industry's our prairie's food.

And work our people's song!

And in this sunny province

There is a booming town;

For 'round about are gushers—

The oil comes pouring down.

There's health; there's wealth; there's gladness.

For all who live near by;

So give a hearty cheering.

An Wainwright boom on high.

Girl Scouts gathered for last view of land on this side of Atlantic as Melita left port.

Canadian Pacific liner Melita leaving Canadian Metropolis with Girl Guides.

Representing eighteen nations of the world, a party of twenty-nine girl scouts and guides sailed from Montreal recently on the Canadian Pacific liner "Melita" after having attended the International Conference of Girl Guides in New York. When the party arrived at Windsor Station, Montreal, from Buffalo, a deputation of Montreal officials met them and accompanied them to the pier.

Miss Lydia Lidholm, assistant in charge of the party, said that the members of the delegation had a greater conception of the spirit of Canada and the United States and prevailing conditions than ever before. They were returning to their own countries in Europe much better informed and much more competent to carry on the work of the organization.

Touching on various phases of the conference, Miss Lidholm said that even though representatives from eighteen countries were assembled, they found that they had almost identical views on the work and were satisfied that the great friendly feeling that had been created would last for many years and would be instrumental in advancing the Girl Scouts Movement through a closer relationship. At present there are girl scout and girl guide movements in almost every community centre in Canada and the United States, while many of the rural districts are showing signs of interest in these organizations. The European party, who arrived in New York on May 6, came to see for themselves the organization system in force here. They visited Boston, Washington, Detroit, Buffalo, Toronto, and Montreal.

In the Canadian metropolis the visitors were welcomed by Mrs. G. H. Duggan, provincial divisional commissioner, Mrs. H. M. Marler, divisional commander, Mrs. C. Campbell, president Montreal Committee, Mrs. Rose McDonald, district commissioner. There were also a number of guide leaders and captains.

VOTE OUT THE PARTY SYSTEM

What caused the organized farmers to enter the political field, and with the consent of the electorate, to take over the reins of government in Alberta five years ago? Principally, the cynical disregard of the needs of Western Canada's greatest industry by party politicians, and the failure of the party government formerly in power to provide clean and efficient administration.

Every other business and industry in Alberta is organized, and uses all the political pressure it can bring to bear to have its wishes passed into law. During the last session of the Alberta Legislature, deputations representing organizations of manufacturers, labor unions, doctors, lawyers, dentists, livestock dealers, etc., put their views before the members of the house. This is right and proper but why are the farmers denounced for organizing for the purpose of securing representation in the House? The reason is that the U.F.A. interferes with the working of party system.

Alberta is primarily an agricultural province. Legislative action is required to secure lower freight rates encourage efficient marketing, build better roads and generally secure the welfare and prosperity of the farming community.

The party system would not be alive today but for the nucleus of city politicians who revive it at every election. Hundreds of city orators are speaking in every part of Alberta during this election, endeavoring to divide the farmers into opposing groups. The overtures made for a business government, with city representatives co-operating with rural members on non-party lines have been rejected, except by labor.

Party System Inefficient.

The party system has proved inefficient in administration as compared with the co-operative system. Here are some additional comparative figures:

Land Titles Office Costs. 1921, $241,909. 1925, $156,753. Election Costs. 1921, $248,000. 1923 Plebiscite, $133,000. Estimated Election Costs. 1926, $130,000. Reductions in controlling expenditures, 1921 to 1924 inclusive. Alberta 14 per cent; Saskatchewan, 12 per cent; Manitoba 8 1/2 per cent. Increases in all other provinces. Agricultural Education. 1921, 320 students, $191,000. 1925, 360 students, $103,000. Many other instances can be given.

The U.F.A. are expending a considerable sum in advertising through the weekly press; the funds for this being contributed by the members, ships, so that the electors may know the truth. The city newspapers are endeavoring to perpetuate the party system.

VOTERS ATTENTION!*Directions as to use of Preferential Ballot

The preferential ballot will come into general use for the first time in the forthcoming provincial elections. Every voter should be thoroughly conversant with the method of marking the ballot before attempting to vote. Read these instructions:

The voter must not use the X mark.

The voter must place the figure 1 opposite the name of the candidate who is his first choice, the figure 2 opposite his second choice, the figure 3 opposite his third choice and so on until he has voted for all the candidates on the ballot if he so wishes.

The voter may plump for one candidate alone, using the figure 1, without spoiling his ballot, but is urged to vote to the full extent of his choices, as it is only by doing this that the voter obtains the full benefit of this form of ballot.

The voter must not place more than one choice opposite any one candidate.

The voter must not make the same choice for more than one candidate.

They voter must not make any mark on the ballot not authorized by these directions.

Read these Instructions Carefully me say that farmers themselves are not building new homes and are not buying new automobiles at a time of great economic depression, I could tell you many things today that we would have been glad to put into effect during the past five years if it had not been for the ever present financial problem.

The Railway Problem

We now come to the Railway Problem. We have a line of well over 400 miles in length running from Edmonton to Grande Prairie and further. The Government has invested in guarantees and cash over $18,000,000. One of the first things we have to do every year is try and find a million dollars to pay the interest on these bonds, because of this problem left to us by the previous administration and it is a desperate problem. It was left to us absolutely tied up. One of the last acts of the late administration was to make an agreement with the C.P.R. for five years, with the consent of the McArthur interests; because, remember, until recently the present Government were only mortgagees, not the owners. The agreement of the late Government expired on July 1st last and one of the terms of the agreement was that the Government should not try to dispose of its mortgage. Now the late Liberals talk today you would think that their agreement was so absolutely bad that the Government should have tried to do something about it at once.

As early as 1923, realizing that the agreement would expire in 1925 and wishing to be ready to meet the situation when it did expire, we started negotiations with the railway companies and the bank that owned the shares. The C.P.R. would not tell us whether or not they wished to continue to operate the road, and we could not deal with another railway because we could not interfere with that agreement. As a result of our negotiations we finally have made an agreement by which we took over the road. We paid a large sum of money to settle without a doubtful lawsuit. There were more questions involved in that problem than the relative positions of the two claims of the bank and the Government.

There were only two ways—by negotiations or by foreclosure—of settling that matter. Had we foreclosed it would have been necessary to put the road into the hands of a receiver. We would have had to pay all the costs of litigation; and then it was very doubtful as to how the two securities would rank. In the meantime we were under an obligation to the people of the Peace River country.

Having regard to all these circumstances, we decided that it was advisable if we could, to get control by negotiations, and we proceeded that way. We many settled at less than 50 cents on the dollar. You don't hear much criticism of that settlement. We are now in the position in which we should have been at least five years ago. It will be found that as a result of our delay we have obtained offers from the transcontinental roads enormously better than the agreement under which the road has been operating. There has been criticism because we didn't dispose of the road earlier, didn't try harder to find a purchaser. But if you have a house or a farm to sell, you don't run up and down the country begging people to take it off your hands, and give the impression that it is in such bad condition that you must get rid of it. If we don't care to give the road to a transcontinental line we can operate it ourselves.

The new Government can, within a week, decide whether they will operate themselves or whether they will make a new agreement for a further period of years, and from now on they will have absolute control of the road. Enabled Farmers to Stay on Farms. Now there is the problem of the dry area. I am not going to take time to discuss it in detail. I will only refer to our securing a report on the dry area, and carrying it into effect through the Drought Relief Act, and the Debt Adjustment Act. I can show you files in the Debt Adjustment Office of hundreds and hundreds of farmers who have been enabled to stay on their farms by the efforts of that debt adjuster.

We are spending millions of dollars in bringing people in from Europe. Which is the better immigration policy trying to take the man who is here and help him out of his difficulties and help him stay here, or bring in a new inexperienced man to take his place? I believe that the $17,000 a year that we have spent has been one of the best immigration agencies that sources.

has been carried on. We have been doing what we could to assist the people with forage crops. We have been working with the Dominion Government, trying to work out re-arrangement of holdings, trying to work out the personal equation, again through the Debt Adjustment Act, trying to help these men to stay here and make good.

Our Oil Resources

In order to assist all we can in developing the industries of Alberta we have arranged with Mr. Dinning, who has been one of our most capable civil servants, to take a year off from the Liquor control work and spend his time investigating the industries of the province. Mr. Dinning has finished the oil industry will now give his time to thorough investigation of the coal and the oil industries. His work will be to advise the Government as to what changes could be made and what assistance can be given to assist in the development of these industries. This has been and will continue to be one of our greatest concerns and we believe we are making substantial progress.

Natural Resources

As to the natural resources question there will be some attempts made during this election to confuse the issue. The matter had been taken up prior to 1921, but not even a semblance of an agreement had been reached. We took the matter up first with the Province of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and then found that it was impossible on account of Alberta having much more valuable resources, to continue to work with them, so we broke off and realized we would have to negotiate by ourselves. Following some very valuable work done by Mr. Greenfield, when he was Premier, I was able to complete an agreement last January, covering the return of all the natural resources to the Province; fortunately we must recognize that when we came to draft a bill to be passed by both Houses, the Dominion Government asked for certain amendments to the legislation dealing with the school lands. As shown by the exchange of telegrams that has since taken place between the Premier of Canada and myself, it was never intimated to me that we should be asked to do more than administer the school lands on the same terms as the Dominion Government has administered them. Unfortunately words were introduced which those opposed to separate schools interpreted as touching the rights of separate school supporters. The matter has been at rest in this Province as a matter of actual practice, but there have always been those who believed that that section of the Alberta Act was not valid and they interpret those few words inserted in the natural resources bill as having the effect of removing the doubt about the validity of section 17.

Controversy Last Thing Desired

Now, ladies and gentlemen, we all of us worship the same God, and from whatever standpoint we begin our religious thinking, if we keep our eyes on Him we are bound to come together, and I believe that in this Province the last thing that was desired was any controversy over the schools question. As soon as I saw that there was any danger of such a controversy I wired the Government at Ottawa asking them to make a little verbal change, and the words that I suggested had this effect, they neither increased or decreased nor varied in any way the rights of any section of the people nor the rights of the Government in this Province. The Province would have taken over that trust on the same terms under which the Dominion Government have been conducting the same trust for many years.

For some reason the Dominion Government would not consent to any change, nor make any suggestion as to how the situation could be met. Now there will be an effort made to try and show that as a result of our work we have blocked the whole transfer of natural resources. Even today there will appear in the paper this afternoon a despatch from Ottawa to the effect that the Government of Canada prepared to refer the whole matter to the Supreme Court of Canada. I say the question of the validity of section 17 has nothing whatever to do with the transfer of the natural resources. But the Dominion Government would not even do that at the time I was in Ottawa and if the Dominion Government had shown any desire then to reach any amicable settlement they would have found the representative of the Provincial Government just as ready as they were to reach a settlement. We must not have a religious controversy at this time. Development of Markets.

For Farm Produce

In regard to agriculture there are certain things we can do and some that we cannot do. We cannot make the rain come. And you would not be very happy if we sent men down telling you that you must work your fields certain ways and keep certain kinds of cattle. But in the first place we can and we should assist in the development of markets, and that is something that we have been turning our attention to. I believe that the market of the future lies to the westward, to a large extent in the Orient.

We have been experimenting with livestock to see to what extent we can find markets there. We have been working for the improvements of the Western Route. As you know, as a result of our complaint a thorough investigation was made into the grain handling facilities at the Pacific Coast. We took up the question of freight rates together with the B.C. Government, and rates on the Western Route.

Twelve Reasons For Electing Liberals

8. It stands for honest and efficient administration. A fair distribution of the expenditure on public works.

9. It stands for honest distribution of the province into ridings.

10. It stands for justice to the returned man in the province.

11. The record of the Liberal party has been one of development and progress. It has to its credit:

1. The settlement of the province.

2. The organization into municipalities.

3. The destruction of railway, lumber and telephone monopolies which threatened its destruction in early days.

4. Farmer legislation such as co-operative elevator act, the farm machinery act, direct legislation.

5. The beginning of labor legislation, which which has remained unimproved. This includes the Factory act, the Workmen's Compensation act and other similar legislation.

6. The development of the vast Peace River area.

7. The organization of schools, the creation of the Provincial University, the Institute of Technology and Art and the Farm Schools.

8. Franchise for women and all legislation safeguarding the rights of women.

9. Legislation and all progressive health legislation.

10. Soldier relief legislation.

12. It has at its head a man who has wide experience in legislation, who has at his back outstanding representatives, not of one class alone, but of all classes in the province—farmers, labor men, business men and professional men.

were finally reduced from the mountain scale of the prairie scale. Fifty million bushels of wheat now go over that route yearly. We fought for the Crow's Nest rates and have secured by act of Parliament these rates on our grain.

The Wheat Pool And Politics
On the question of co-operative marketing, of course, I must not say a word for fear I 'drag the Wheat Pool into politics.' Mr. McGillivray, of course, can take the position that the Conservative Party of this Province is responsible for the organization of the Wheat Pool, and that as a solicitor who was engaged to draft a contract, he played a great part in the formation of the Wheat Pool. Mr. Shaw can say what he would do for the Wheat Pool and that is not supposed to be dragging it into politics. But if we mention the Wheat Pool in any shape or manner we are 'dragging it into politics.' I would be very glad if it could be kept entirely out of politics.

I am not going to tell the people of this Province of the part I played in the organization of the Wheat Pool. The people can build a monument and put the Mr. Southams and of aft that monument and Mr. McGillivray's picture on it, and leave it, if they choose, as a monument to the founders of the Wheat Pool. I am satisfied that the farmers of this Province know how the Wheat Pool was formed.

Credit Due to The Alberta Farmers
First of all, you joined in a social way in your great movement, and have learned the lesson of co-operation there you decided to extend into the commercial field, and today, if the Pools of Canada are on a substantial foundation and the Pools of the U.S. are not, it is because the farmers of Alberta have learned the lesson of co-operation. And neither Mr. Shaw, nor Mr. McGillivray nor I have any right to stand before you and say that we or any party were responsible for the organization of the Wheat Pool. The Government has shown a desire to do what we could; we believe that we played our part earnestly and conscientiously, and we are still prepared to do it, and not only in regard to the Wheat Pools but in regard to the other forms of co-operative marketing.

Mr. McGillivray has promised to look after the interests of labor if labor unions will cease taking direct political action and submerge their identity in the Conservative party.

We invite labor to elect its own direct representatives and we will take a representative of labor into the government to co-operate with us in administering the public affairs of the province. The same invitation is extended to the business interests of the cities.

The Premier coincided with the confident appeal to the business, labor and farming interests of the Wainwright Constituency, exposing the essential evils of the party system by which in the past we have been weakened by division into two warring camps.

An illustration of one of the worst evils of the party system the dependence of 'Provincial Government upon Federal Party Government. Premier Brownlee said in the course of his concluding remarks: 'If some important question came up if such a question as the tariff on farm implements came into question, and it was necessary for the Provincial Government to take a stand on that question, how could a Conservative Government here take a stand in favor of that when the leader of the Conservative Federal party has vowed his approval of a tariff on agricultural implements. How could the leader of a Conservative Provincial party support the Crow's Nest Pass freight rates, when the leader of the Federal party has declared opposition. We want something better than the party system for Alberta; we want those people who go to Edmonton to be able to face the questions that affect our homes and our children, and forgetting all about political decisions, to try and solve these problems from the view point only of trying to improve the welfare and the condition of the people of this Province.'

Miss Donald Dickie of Calgary Normal school gave an interesting and instructive address on "Books Every young person should read."

Miss Isobel Noble of Daysland supervisor of girls' club gave a brief outline of what the girls clubs are striving for. To know themselves, to be themselves and to give themselves.

Miss MacMillan reported that the demonstration and lecture work of the Home Bureau service was meeting with greater success each year. Foods cooking, household administration, sewing, millinery and basketry courses are very popular. Total attendance at the various courses last year totalled 15,789. There are at present 282 institutes and 50 girls clubs. She also emphasized the value of the loan collection, clipping bureau and travelling libraries, especially in rural and isolated districts.

An illustrated lecture was given by Mrs. Wm Stewart of Peace River on the Women's Institute exhibit at the Canadian National Exhibition in Toronto last year. Mrs. Stewart stressed the importance of each province being adequately represented, saying that last year when Saskatchewan had neglected to send an exhibit a woman inquired of her if Saskatchewan was in Alberta. "Not when I left home," Mrs. Stewart replied. But you see she went on, somebody might easily ask if Alberta didn't belong in British Columbia if we were so foolish as not to send an exhibit and of course "B.C." would then say, 'well it should be.'

New Brunswick sent a hand craft exhibit, rugs, quilts, tapestries, embroidery, done in grandmother's day. Miss Whetmore, exhibitor, is an interior decorator, she was dressed as a bride of 1860. Quebec represented sweetness with a maple sugar exhibit. They had on exhibit cakes, cookies, fruits preserved with sugar and syrup and a cast of King George in Maple sugar. Ontario exhibited a model kitchen. Mrs. Aitkens gave demonstrations in cooking each day. Manitoba sent eleven girls to exhibit fruit, apples, honey, shavings of wheat, paints and furnishings etc. British Columbia exhibit was called a salarrium, which means sunlight hospital, sunlight homes good health etc. This building is to be built on the eastern slope of Vancouver Island. Alberta sent a pan exhibit consisting of Macaroni.

sphagetti vermicelli etc made from Alberta grains, cheese and butter was sent from Wetaskiwin wild and cultivated fruits canned, canned vegetables wild and tame meats canned. Black currant jam was made by two bachelor boys at Grimsby, cereals and 12 bottles showing the process of turning beans into sugar products from manufacturers were jams, vinegar, pottery, clay, teapots, glass wear, manufactured with our own gas, coal etc, washing powders. Brooms were sent from Edmonton. Mrs. Stewart said the other provinces seemed to borrow the Alberta brooms to sweep out booths in the morning so the Alberta brooms cleaned up the whole of Canada. Mrs. Stewart gave daily lectures and had large pictures to show the beauty spots of Alberta. Manitoba won 1st prize and Alberta 2nd. The exhibit was divided equally in three parts and sent to the Home for blind men, women and the Soldiers Home.

Alberta's mental hospitals was the theme of the address given by Mrs. Arthur Murphy of Edmonton better known as Magistrate Emily Murphy or Janie Cannock. At present Alberta is caring for 1,300 insane and feeble minded, more than the patients in all the general hospitals in the province and the number has doubled in the last five years. We urgently need a psychopathic or receiving ward where patients could be taken for treatment which perhaps would remove the necessity of sending them to Ponoka. At Ponoka the patients are taught to make baskets, sew, do housework etc. The men to make furniture etc. Seventy five percent of all insanity is directly due to heredity and is caused chiefly from alcoholism or the great social diseases. Mrs. Murphy urged the need of surgical treatment for patients when they are discharged from mental hospitals. Insane people are not entitled to profligacy. Make your voice heard at the government. Remember the government does not like to go ahead of the public.

Mrs. Harold Riley, president of the Calgary council on child welfare spoke on that work. 'The old fashioned ed cod liver oil and the direct rays of the sun not through a glass have the same effect on the human body as the expensive artificial ultra-violet ray said, in giving advice for the care of the child's health plenty of sleep sound body made for a sound mind, and rest was urged, claiming that a reference to recreation she continued, take time to know how your boys or girls are spending their leisure time. Invest companionship in your children's recreation for nothing will bring you bigger dividends in love, home life and good citizenship. Teach your children truthfulness, obedience and self-respect.'

Mr. M. D. Geddes of Calgary gave an illustrated lecture on the Canadian Rockies. Mr. Geddes is a member of the Alpine Club. He has done a great deal of climbing and has to his credit the climbing of Mount Robson. While in Calgary the delegates were entertained to an informal reception in the dining room of the Palliser Hotel by the Calgary Women's Institutes and other local organizations. They were also entertained to a luncheon by the Hudson Bay Company in their lunch room which was greatly appreciated by the out-of-town delegates.

Musical numbers, as piano solos, vocal solos, cello solos, violin solos by prominent artists added greatly to each session.

Mr Lou Bignell has sold his farm and will leave this district soon. He is one of the old timers that we don't like to see go.

POULTRY LICE & MITES

At this period of the year, vermin unless controlled, multiply very rapidly

The fowls at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, are treated periodically for lice. Blue ointment, which two parts of lard have been added, is used to kill the lice and mites. The addition of a little tallow gives more base. This ointment is applied to the skin below the vent and under the wings. Fowls treated in this cheap and effective manner will remain free from lice for several months unless exposed to further infestation. Blue ointment should not be used on sitting hens until after hatch. The fumes from the ointment will kill the germs in the egg

Unsanitary poultry houses encourage the most troublesome of vermin, the red mite. These mites get their fill of blood at night and leave the fowl before dawn, to hide in cracks and crevices. The blood reddens the mite, hence the name red mite. The houses at the plant are thoroughly cleaned and are sprayed each spring summer and fall with a spray composed of one part of carbolic and four parts of coal oil. The roosts are painted twice each month during warm weather, with common crank case oil. The above treatment is very penetrating and plays havoc with the mites

The cleaning and spraying is done during a sunny forenoon, which allows time for the house to dry thoroughly before evening.

Fresh air and sunlight are wonderful disinfectant for the poultry house and combined with cleanliness are proven remedies against most of the poultry yard ills. (Exhibition circular, No. 85 'How to rid the hen house of mites' may be had free of charge from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.)

A good spray pump should be part of every poultry keeper's equipment
